

Hammock Dunes[®]
A Private Oceanfront Golf Community

Ligustrum Tree Disease

As many residents have noticed, the “snow-coned” or “mushroom” shaped ligustrum trees on Camino del Rey appear to be dying with patches of brown leaves and dead limbs. The Hammock Dunes Maintenance Committee and Corey Enterprises are aware of the situation. The reason for the decline is unknown. Corey removed pieces of the trees and sent the samples to the University of Florida agricultural research department for clarification. The Maintenance Committee engaged the services of a certified tree arborist and will be meeting with him in the next few days.

Since this unknown Ligustrum disease could impact the entire community, the Hammock Dunes Owners’ Association will continue to provide additional information as necessary.
